

Formed in 1957, Ghana is a low-middle income country, located in West Africa. Boosted by political stability, Ghana benefits from sizable foreign direct investment. With an economy based largely on the services sector, tourism, manufacturing, and Agro-processing industries are all thriving in Ghana.

Ghana's main exports are oil, gold, cocoa, bauxite and diamonds. With a population of just over 26 million, Ghana's domestic market is small, but its proximity to the larger African region indicates great potential.
